

Biography for Hugh Geiger

After graduating from high school in 1985, Hugh Geiger enlisted in the Marine Corps and completed basic training at Paris Island. He started his career as an Aircraft Rescue and Firefighting Specialist, but was selected to join the Marine Security Battalion, Quantico, VA. He later was assigned to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow where he provided security for President Reagan during his Moscow Summit.

When he completed his service in the Marine Corps, Geiger got his Bachelor of Science from Georgetown University and then went on to study law at the New England School of Law. During an internship at the United Nations, he provided research for the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda. He also served in the Public Defender's Office in Charleston, WV.

Mr. Geiger has founded three different companies; First Boston Realty International – specializing in the rental market; Thinking Cup – a unique coffee shop in Boston; and Hartland Hill Farm in Vermont.

Come hear how this very successful veteran has capitalized on his experiences and veterans benefits to become a very successful businessman – and how continues to help veterans.